

THE COCKTAIL JOURNEY OF CONTEMPORARY HAVANA

OLD HAVANA CENTRAL HAVANA VEDADO

Contemporary Havana can essentially be described as three cities in one: Old Havana, Vedado and the newer suburban districts. The city extends mostly westward and southward from the bay, which is entered through a narrow inlet and which divides into three main harbors: Mari melena, Guanabacoa and Antares.

OLD HAVANA

Havana Vieja as it is known locally Old Havana was founded by the Spanish in 1519, and is now the capita; City, largest city, and the leading commercial center in Cuba. The Spanish established settlements along the north coast between 1514 and 1519. Havana was given its name by a Spanish conquistador by the name of Panfilo de Narvaez.

CENTRAL HAVANA

Sandwiched in between the suburbs of Old Havana and Vedado is the arena of Havana called Central Havana or “Centro Habana”. Its the barrio where you will probably feel Cuba at it’s most intense. It is similar to Old Havana in character and style most of the buidlings here, while not as old as those in Old Havana, are still very old and many of them are of historical interest and heritage value.

VEDADO

Vedado is sometimes referred to as "New Havana". There is truth to this moniker as Vedado, compared to Old Havana and Central Havana is a much more recently built suburb and where there was a concentration of commerce and business during the first half of the 20th century. At the same time, Vedado is actually quite old itself, with pretty much all the buildings having been constructed before 1960, and since many of the buildings have been poorly maintained since then, its appearance, like that of Old Havana and Central Havana, is still one of decay and deterioration and one which transports you to a different era, stimulating the imagination and the senses.
